

Success Through Restorative Caregiving

As an avenue to provide the best services possible for your residents, a Restorative Nursing program will ensure your clients are receiving the highest quality of life available. The implementation of a successful restorative program will foster an interdisciplinary approach to encourage positive patient outcomes. This seminar will assist you in organizing and facilitating a Restorative Nursing program that complies with current requirements of the MDS.

Learning Objectives

- Understand the principles of a Restorative Nursing program.
- Describe the implementation of a Restorative Nursing program.
- Identify the activities associated with a Restorative Nursing program and demonstrate appropriate interventions according to a sample care plan.
- Understand documentation requirements.
- Identify the MDS components impacted by the Restorative Nursing program.
- Discuss the interdisciplinary team approach to a Restorative Nursing program.

Course Instructor

Regine Dade, MBA, LOTR, is the Area Vice President and Clinical Development Director for Reliant Rehabilitation, a contract therapy provider throughout the United States. Regine has over 10 years of experience as an occupational therapist and operations manager in the geriatric and long term care setting. Her primary focus is on developing a strong interdisciplinary team that will enhance outcomes for clients. Regine is committed to providing clinicians the tools and knowledge necessary to deliver a quality of care that truly makes a difference in people's lives.

Restorative Nursing

Restoring and maintaining the functional abilities of residents is a benchmark which contributes to the quality of life for residents in long term care communities. The future measure of a community's performance will depend in part on its implementation of restorative programs!

Does your direct care staff have the skills to implement an effective Restorative Nursing program?
